Strategic Training Coordinator Course

Introduction

Introduction

The role of a training coordinator has changed over the past years from that of an administrator, record keeper and scheduler to a more complex one. The new role goes beyond the role of support staff. It now includes, not only interviewing the vendors, but also conducting, and designing the training programs as well.

To handle this role better, you need to appreciate the bigger picture of the Learning and Training function, learn the new market trends, the new tools and technologies, and relationship management.

This course by Xcelerate Training Institute will help you understand the strategic side of the Learning and Development function, acquire the consultative skills required to partner with the stakeholders, and evaluate the training outcome. This course goes beyond the logistics of training coordination and gives you the skills required to become a true business partner of your organization.

Learning Objectives

- Understand your transition from internal consulting approach to partner with the internal and external stakeholders
- Understand the skills required for communication, and better inter-personal relations with all the stakeholders
- Identify how to diagnose the learning need of the functions in relation to the organization
- Determine appropriate learning solution based on the needs, and desired outcome of the functions
- Work with the outside vendors to formulate appropriate learning solutions
- Articulate the training requirement to the training vendors
- Understand the right evaluation strategies and the training outcomes

Training Methodology

This training course at Xcelerate Training Institute goes beyond the administration of training coordination. To imbibe you with the skills required to become a true business partner, we offer flexible and blended formats to meet your requirements.

A highly interactive presentation will also include several management games, paper-pencil exercises, activities, role plays, videos, and robust practice sessions. You get an opportunity to share your ideas with other industry participants as well.
